Goldwater Shirks Showdown; Scranton Seeks Nominator

Sen. Scott Named Floor Manager

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, seeking the Republican presidential nomination, said Sunday that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had expressed surprise "that the people of America would question who he — Eisenhower —is for."

Scranton did not amplify the statement at a joint news conference with former Ambasador Henry Cabot Lodge. He also announced that Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, a former Republican national chairman and a member of the GOP platform committe, would be his floor manager at the national convention next week in San Francisco.

Talks With Ike

Scranton said he phoned Eisenhower on Saturday to report on the progress of his campaign.

The governor was asked if what was called Eisenhower's reluctance to endorse him was on the former president's own or whether it was part of Scranton's campaign strategy.

Scranton replied: "It certainly is not (part of my campaign strategy)."

Then Scranton made the statement about Eisenhower expressing surprise that the people of America would question whom he is for.

Lodge met for more than an hour in a downtown hotel with Scranton before their departure for Chicago. It was the first meeting betwen the two since Lodge returned from Viet Nam last week to campaign for the governor.

Asked if he and Lodge had agreed on who would place Scranton's name in nomination, the governor said: "We have not discussed who will be the nominator at the convention."

Asked if Eisenhower would put his name in nomination, Scranton said: "I'd be delighted to have any Eisenhower for me."

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the former president's brother, has come out in support of Scranton. So has the former president's son, John.

Not A Candidate

Lodge again ruled out the possibility of his becoming a compromise candidate in the event of a convention deadlock.

He said: "I am not draftable. I resigned my post from Viet Nam to help Gov. Scranton and I have tremendous confidence he will win the nomination. I did not resign to campaign for myself or to conive subtly for the nomination. I made a promise to myself and I will not double-cross myself."

Scranton said he has not discused with Lodge or anyone else the potential running mates should he win the nomination.

Scott, chairman of the Pennsylvania GOP delegation at the party's 1960 convention, has been one of Scranton's most ardent supporters. He is seeking re-election this year.

Scranton Backers Push Rights Plank

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater's platform spokesman backed away Sunday from a possible civil rights showdown with Gov. William W. Scranton's forces.

He indicated Goldwater would accept a plank which recommended reducing the Congressional representation of any state denying some of its citizens the vote.

Last-Chance Assault

Backers of Pennsylvania Gov. Scranton nevertheless mobilized for a last-chance assault, at platform hearings starting Monday, on the conservative policies of the front-running Arizonan.

They hoped to provoke a platform battle on issues which would show Goldwater so far to the right of the much-advertised GOP "main stream" that sizable blocs of Goldwater's presidential delegates would feel obliged to defect.

Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, Goldwater's voice in the 100-member platform committee, said Goldwater "would not be averse" to a plank which favored depriving states of representation in the House of Representatives equivalent to the proportion of voters denied the franchise. The plank would be a red flag to Goldwater's southern segregationist supporters.

The Scranton drive to split off at least 80 of Goldwater's more than 700 promised votes—a loss which presumably would deny him a first-ballot nomination—raised the possibility that the platform scrap would generate much of the fireworks at the Republican National Convention.

Demonstration Threats

This possibility was enhanced by the threat of civil rights demonstrations. Some convention officials voiced concern that rights groups would try to "Park" the public platform hearings. They expected that each hearing would be picketed.

The Congress of Racial Equality, they said, has given notice it will picket every nonsocial session of the GOP gathering.

San Francisco Negro leaders predict 40,000 to 50,000 will make a mass march on Market Street next Sunday, as the platform body is writing its final draft.

Republicans Storm Into California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans, led by supporters of Sen. Barry Goldwater, streamed into this convention city Sunday, with their first goal a platform on which all GOP elements can stand.

Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, the chairman of the platform committee gets things rolling officially with a meting Monday night.

His committe will be listening all week to testimony—four panels will operate simultaneously—as a prelude to the big show.

A week from Monday the convention opens, and the Republicans start chosing the man they hope can oust Lyndon B. Johnson from the White House.

Goldwater supporters are so sure their man will win the nomination on the first ballot that, publicly at least, they ignore the efforts of Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania to consolidate the opposition.

They insist the biggest question the convention will face is who will be Goldwater's vice presidential runing mate.

So far most of the talk here has revolved around Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the GOP national chairman. Gov. Mark O Hatfield of Oregon has suggested a Goldwater-Miller ticket.

But traditionally presidential candidates don't disclose in advance whom they favor, and Goldwater follows the pattern.

The strategy of Scranton supporters is to try to create division in the platform hearings and come with conclusions at which Goldwater, or those around him, would balk.

Since Goldwater is far ahead on delegates corralled, his strategy will be to give in where possible and avoid trouble.

Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., Goldwater's spokesman on the platform committe, indicated this Sunday during a television interview.

Rhodes said he thought Goldwater might go along with a plank that would call for penalizing states which deny votes to their citizens.

Such a plank has been suggested by Scranton.

Negroes Open Movie, Hotel In Jackson

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Negroes quietly crossed two more color barriers in this Deep South city Sunday, rgistering at two downtown hotels and one motel and attending a white movie theater.

Officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People registered without incident at the hotels and motel. Four unidentified Negro youths attended the show.

Leading the groups breaking the hotel-motel color barrier were members of the NAACP national board of directors, who arrived with staff members for a four-day inspection of the racial situation.

Registered

Six board and staff members, all Negroes, registered at the motel and were escorted to their rooms by private patrolmen. Five members of a biracial NAACP group registered at one hotel and two Negro NAACP officials registered at another.

When the first member of the group appeared at the registration desk at the Sun-N-Sand Motel, the clerk said simply, "Sign in, please."

The group went through the registration procedures as newsmen and cameramen crowded around.

A small detail of plainclothes city detectives observed proceedings and two uniformed private patrolmen flanked the doorway.

Five Check In

The five checked into the King Edward Hotel several blocks away at about the same time, causing little attention and no incident. The first two broke the color barrier at the Heidelberg Hotel, located between the other two, earlier in the day, again without incident.

Dr. H. Claude Hudson of Los Angeles, a national board member, and Keneth Guscott, president of the Boston NAACP branch, received a 10th floor room in the 12-story Heidelberg.

World Hails Rights Law As 'Triumph'

LONDON (AP)—Newspapers around the world hailed the U.S. civil rights law Sunday as a triumph for American democracy, but warned it may take half a century to put it into effect and will be—as one said—a "great test of fire" for the United States.

The late President John F. Kennedy was given global credit for its passage. In such diverse points as London and Mexico City it was called his greatest monument.

Moscow

Moscow and Peking—predictably—took a gloomy view.

Tass reported from Washington that "racists" have started a campaign to prevent the law taking effect.

"Terror and violence against the Negro population in the Southern states have noticeably increased of late," the official Soviet agency wrote.

Peking's New China News Agency called the bill fraudulent and added that American Negroes "realize the necessity of using violence" to obtain what they want.

Extensive dispatches from the United States gave a full account of the difficulties facing the law to readers around the world.

Western Europe's newspapers did not expect that the law would change things overnight.

Typical Comment

Typical was the comment of West Germany's Frankfurter allegemeine: "Racial prejudice won't be killed by a law. But laws can help. The civil rights bill which President Johnson signed into law cannot end a depressing history of violations of human dignities. But it is a stage in the long process of the integration of the American nation."

In Spain, dispatches from the United States ran into thousands of words. The Falangist organ Arriba commented: "Now begins for American democracy a great test of fire."

Newport Festival Scene Of Riots

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Police ducked rocks and other missiles Sunday while quelling a beach disturbance among several thousand youths attending the Newport Jazz Festival.

Nearly 100 youths were arrested and taken to three jails.

No Serious Injuries

No serious injuries were reported, but police said hundreds of dollars of damage was caused to private and public beach houses on Second Beach in Middletown, a small community adjoining Newport.

Police said six or seven ringleaders led others in tearing down beach house doors and piling them onto a bonfire on the beach.

Beach umbrellas, a lifeguard stand and other materials also were used as fuel.

Middletown Police Chief Donald Homen, one of the first on the scene at 3:30 a.m., went among the youths and pleaded with them to disperse quietly.

To show his good faith, he removed his helmet and put aside his gun.

Police Summoned

When his pleas were met with jeers and some rocks, Homen summoned the state police and policemen from Newport, Warwick, Jamestown, Central Falls and Woonsocket, and the shore patrol from the nearby Newport Naval Base. About 10 policemen responded to the alarm.

The police had some experience in dealing with unruly crowds. Just four years ago hundreds of jazz festival fans rioted through most of one night until they were quieted with tear gas, fire hoses and wholesale arrests.

Troublemakers

No such drastic action was necessary Sunday. Homen said scores of police rounded up the persistent troublemakers, but permitted those who wished to leave the beach voluntarily to do so.

Within 90 minutes the beach had been cleared, and a parking lot nearby was vacated of 1,500 automobiles.

The disturbance came some 15 hours before the final performance of the four-day festival.

GI Wounded In East Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—An American soldier was shot and wounded in East Berlin Sunday night, apparently during a robbery attempt, a U. S. Army spokesman said.

The soldier was found in a street leading into East Berlin's Red Square, Marx-Engels Platz, by an officer in a U. S. sedan who passed there by accident.

The wounded man was brought back to West Berlin and placed in the U. S. military hospital.

The spokesman said his condition was satisfactory.

U. S. authorities withheld the name of the soldier pending notification of relatives.

The Army spokesman said the soldier, who was in uniform, took a trip into East Berlin in a commercial tourist bus.

Apparently he missed the bus at one stage of the tour and began to walk back to Friedrichstrasse, where he could pass through the Red wall on foot to Checkpoint Charlie, the Western Allied control post on the West Berlin side of the wall.

Helicopter Water Bombs Control California Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Firemen conquered a swiftly-moving brush blaze Sunday after battling it four days over fothills, canyons, mountains and grasslands.

It was Southern California's first major fire of 1964. It raced 20 miles, scorching 12,800 acres.

Three times it leaped across barriers clawed out by firemen with axes, shovels and bulldozers. At 1 a.m. it finally was controlled.

Cause Of Fire

A rifleman's bullet clipped a power line at 1:15 p.m. Thursday afternon in the hills 40 miles north of Los Angeles. The line fell, sending sparks into dry, brown brush—and the race was on.

Burning at times at better than a mile an hour, the fire blazed to the 4,500-foot ridge of the San Gabriel Mountains, swept down to scorch and leapfrog over a tiny mountain village, then burned on almost to the edge of the Mojave Desert.

No homes were lost and there were no serious injuries.

"It was one of the longest fires in California history," said a U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "At times it loked like a footrace. A man can't move a mile an hour in rough terrain."

'Copter Drop

Helicopters, "hopping up and down like yo-yos," dumped 50,000 gallons of water on the worst spots Saturday and Sunday as firemen massed to curb the fire's rampaging head in the grassy Leona Valley.

Saturday night, bulldozers began edging the flanks in, narrowing the mile-wide tongue of flame at the head. Finally, narrowed to a quarter-mile, the blaze hit a highway and firebreak and halted.

Half the 800 firemen at the scene returned to their bases. They had been brought here from national forests over half of California. Los Angeles County and State Division of Forestry crews asisted.

Most of the fire was in Angeles National Forest.

Earthquake Felt In California

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—An earthquake in the Gulf of California was recorded Sunday by the seismological center at the University of California.

The center said the quake occurred at 12:11 p.m. PDT (2:1 p.m. EST) about 1,180 miles southeast of Berkeley.

It registered 6.5 on the Richter scale. The violent San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.25.

The seismograph at Spring Hill College, Mobile, Ala., also registered the quake.

The Rev. Louis J. Eisele, in Mobile, said the quake "could have done great damage."

Southern Africa Wants Democracy

LONDON (AP) — African prime ministers assembling here Sunday night for a Commonwealth meeting indicated they will seek a showdown with Britain on the issue of bringing democracy to white-ruled Southern Rhodesia.

Thus even before its Wednesday opening, the Commonwealth conference of prime ministers appeared headed for a clash between the white members of the 33-year-old club and the emerging states of Africa and Asia.

Indians Plan Second Council

TOWANDA, Pa. (AP) — The first council of American Indians in 108 years was held in June, 1963, at Wyalusing Rocks near here.

The Indians had planned only for themselves, with no formal demonstrations or exhibitions, and were unprepared for an influx of white tourists estimated at more than 70,000 over a three-day span.

The Indians will pow-wow again, July 10 to July 12, at Wyalusing Rocks — known by many Indians as "Prayer Rocks" — but this time Indian leaders are arranging for thousands of white visitors.

Worn Out Sinatra Misses Big Fight

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Entertainer Frank Sinatra was ordered by his doctor to rest in his Stockholm hotel Sunday. Dr. Leon Krohn, Sinatra's personal physician, said Sinatra was suffering from exhaustion.

Krohn said Sinatra was not able to see the fight between Americans Floyd Patterson and Eddie Machen. He had come to Sweden to cover the fight as a special photographer for a U. S. sports magazine.

Sailors End Workers Search

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) —Four hundred sailors ended their Fourth of July weekend Sunday, beating through the red-clay farmlands of neighboring Leake County in the 14th day of a search for three missing civil rights workers.

The sailors and federal and state investigators have been searching an estimated 500 square miles in Neshoba County and the four counties which border it. These counties embrace more than 3,000 square miles.

Tate Asks New Redistrict Plan

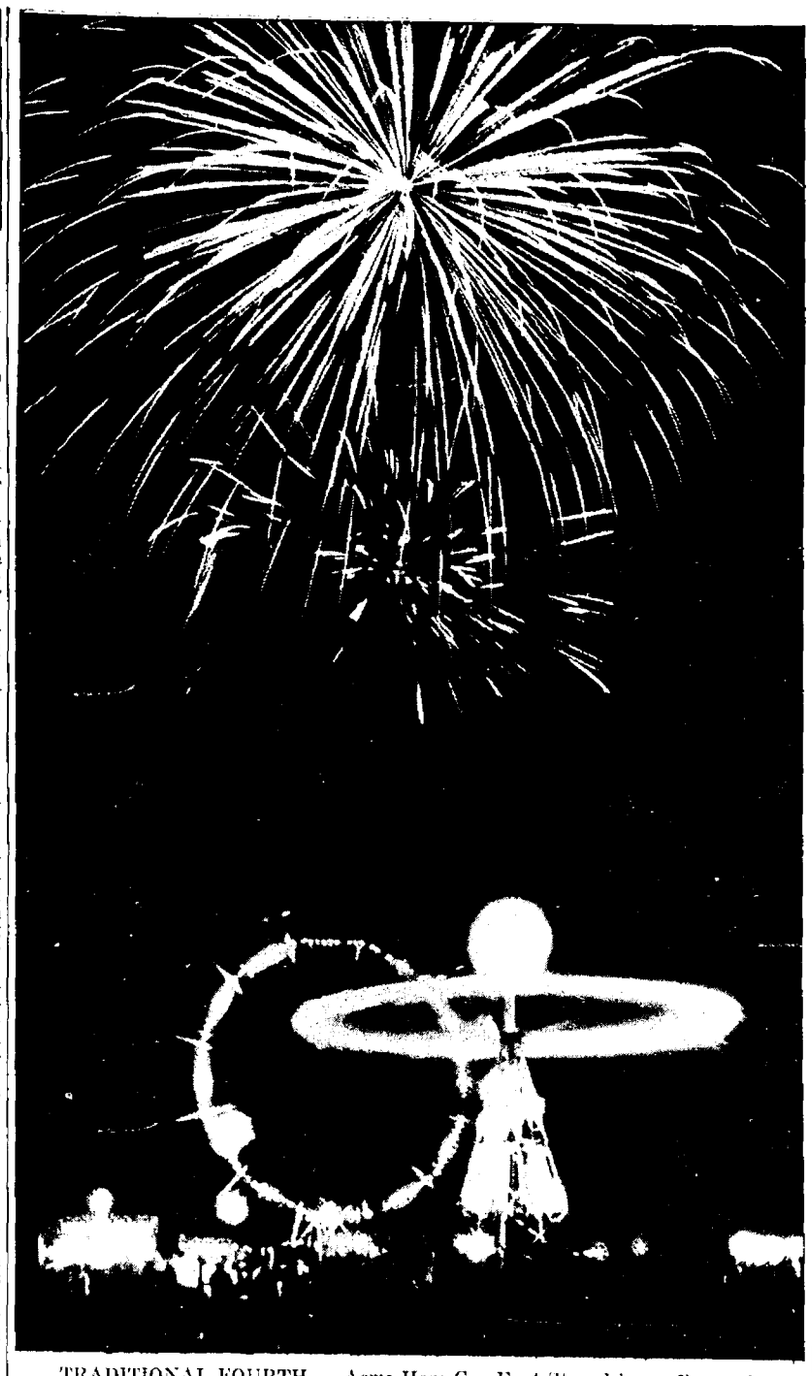
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor James H. J. Tate urged Gov. Scranton Sunday to convene a special session of the legislature to pass what Tate termed a fair and just reapportionment plan for both houses of the General Assembly in accordance with the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Tate sent the governor a letter also urging that the legislature enact amendments to the state constitution to correct what he called outmoded apportionment provisions.

Mexicans Elect Ordaz President

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexicans turned out in reported record numbers Sunday to elect Gustavo Diaz Ordaz president for the next six years. The election had more fiesta in it than fight.

Diaz Ordaz was the candidate of outgoing President Adolfo Lopez Mateos' Institutional revolutionary Party (PRI). The party has not lost a presidential election in 25 years.



TRADITIONAL FOURTH — Acme Hose Co., East Stroudsburg, firemen's carnival was a rip-roaring success, according to Chief Herman Meinhart. Above, the traditional fireworks display on July 4 was spectacular, and visible over most of the area. Below, carnival rides were full, although patrons were disappointed by two nights of rain. Meinhart said that roughly 1,000 tickets were sold in the television set raffle to assist the Marshalls Creek Disaster Fund. Winner was a Brooklyn Man. Meinhart also reported that other firemen's carnivals in the county will also support the fund.

Rahman Seeks U. S. Support In Malay-Indonesia Crisis

SINGAPORE, Malaysia (AP) Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said Sunday night Malaysia's outlawed Communist movement has established contact with Indonesia in an attempt to renew terrorism in his young nation.

Rahman stopped off here en route from Kuala Lumpur to Europe and the United States in search of support for Malaysia in its crisis with neighboring Indonesia.

He told newsmen that Malaysian intelligence officials are "aware" of the contacts between Malaysian Communists along Thailand's border and Indonesians in North Sumatra. However, Rahman said, the alleged Red link could not be of any use unless the Indonesians get a foothold in Malaysian territory.

Chinese-led Communist terrorists were beaten back after a decade-long guerrilla war in Malaya. Remnants have sought refuge along the heavily jungled border with Thailand.

Rahman, who has been emphasizing the Communist tie-in with Indonesian hostilities against his federation, said he was out to seek on his trip "material as well as moral support" in "our hour of trial and tribulations."

Mission of Peace

At his capital, Kuala Lumpur, Rahman was seen off by government officials and members of the diplomatic corps.

"I am on a mission of peace, hope and understanding," he told newsmen at the airport. "I have no other ambitions.

"I expect to get a sympathetic hearing from our friends at our hour of need and trial in meeting a very foul enemy."

A crowd of Malaysians saw Rahman off. Some carried placards, one of which said: "To hell with Sukarno," meaning President Sukarno of Indonesia.

Rahman is scheduled to meet with President Johnson in Washington during his U.S. visit July 22-23. He will meet U.N. Secretary-General U Thant on Aug. 3 in New York.

Rahman heads first for London, where he will attend the conference of leaders of the British Commonwealth and work on the sidelines for their support. The conference opens Wednesday.

Then he is scheduled to fly to Paris for a meeting with President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Capable of Attacks

In Indonesia, meanwhile, the commander of the Indonesian volunteer combat brigade said his forces are capable of launching attacks on "the heart of British and Malaysian military bases."

Col. Sabirin Mochtar also said in a statement his volunteers also would "enter Malaysia from all sides" if British troops set foot on Indonesian territory.

Poles Criticize Kennedy For Car Top Talks

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Communist party newspaper Trybuna Luda said Sunday of Robert F. Kennedy's visit to Poland: He misbehaved in the streets by speaking from rooftops of cars and was notoriously late for appointments, but we liked what he said.

The U.S. attorney general came here June 27 without advance publicity in the Polish press but drew enthusiastic turnouts of thousands of Poles, who cheered his words and extended the traditional Polish wish that he live 100 years.

He left last Wednesday and Poland's Sunday newspapers carried more wordage on his visit than when he was here.

"There were certain elements, not completely serious, not used in Poland or anywhere else in Europe," Trybuna Luda said.

Late For Meetings

"Such as his notoriously being late for appointed meetings with groups of serious and responsible people who found time (for Kennedy) in that politically busy week."

The paper went on to say that the only persons in memory to appear on automobile tops before a Polish public was Jan Kiepura, a singer of 25 years ago who was known as "The Boy from Sosnowiec."

"Putting these episodes aside, we could not but positively accept the final statement of Mr. Kennedy and the numerous interesting remarks from his public appearances," the Communist organ continued. "His emphasis on building bridges between nations seeking peaceful and constructive solutions to difficult political problems must be recalled.

"With understandable satisfaction, we may accept Kennedy's words on the part and prestige of Poland on the internarement and our initiative in the matter of Laos and stopping the armaments race."

It complained, however, that Kennedy was vague on the questions of final recognition by the West of the Oder-Neisse line between Germany and Poland and of what it called the "revengist activities by members of the Bonn (West German) government."

"Robert Kennedy was welcomed in Poland warmly and with interest," the paper said,

Lodge Named Personal Advisor

HARRISBURG (AP)—Former Viet Nam Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge formally joined the Scranton-for-President campaign Sunday as a "personal advisor" to the Pennsylvania chief executive.

Following a joint news conference, Lodge immediately departed for Wichita, Kan., to boost William W. Scranton as the best Republican candidate for president.

Lodge and Scranton flew together to Chicago, where they were to part company.

Scranton has scheduled two days of intensive campaigning in Illinois in order to drum up support among rank-and-file Republicans there.

Scranton, when asked at the news conference what role Lodge would play for him at the convention, described the former ambassador as his "special personal advisor."

Iowa Poll Favors Scranton

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The Iowa poll conducted by the Des Moines Sunday Register showed Sunday that a majority of the Iowa Republicans interviewed favored Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton over Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater for the GOP nomination for president. The poll's findings differed considerably from the apparent feelings of Iowa's delegates to the Republican national convention. An Associated Press check last Friday of the state's 24 delegates indicated that 10 favored Goldwater, 6 favored Scranton and 8 were still uncommitted.

Puerto Rico Uncommitted

SAN JUAN, P. R. (AP)—Puerto Rico's five voting delegates to the Republican National Convention are leaning toward Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania for the GOP presidential nomination, a party leader says.

"Our delegation remains uncommitted," Luis Ferre told a reporter Saturday night, "but we are leaning toward Scranton because we believe that he exemplifies the principles of Republicanism which have made the United States the leader of the free world."

Scranton Gains 2 Jersey Votes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two more New Jersey delegates say they will vote for Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania on the first ballot at the Republican national convention. The decision by former Congressman W. Kean and Leslie Blau brings to four the number who have publicly stated their preference for the Pennsylvanian.

Curtis Charges Smear Tactics

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., says Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania is using smear tactics in this effort to capture the Republican nomination for president. Curtis, generally considered among Missouri delegates leaning toward Sen. Barry Goldwater for the nomination, said Saturday Scranton hasn't been telling people why he would make a good president. Instead, Curtis says, "he has been going around the country telling why he thinks Goldwater would make a poor one."

Eisenhower Not A Delegate

TUXEDO PARK, N.Y. (AP)—Rep. Katherine St. George, R-N.Y., says former President Dwight Eisenhower would have to be a delegate to the Republican National Convention before he could nominate William Scranton for the presidency. Mrs. St. George, parliamentarian for the convention, said Saturday the general could become a delegate if one of the at-large members of the Pennsylvania contingent stepped aside and other Pennsylvanians elected Eisenhower.

Tupper Says Miracle Needed

ORONO, Maine (AP) — Rep. Stanley R. Tupper, R-Maine, says "it would take a miracle of major proportions" for Gov. William Scranton to win the GOP presidential nomination. Tupper said he'll go to the San Francisco convention only if "there's a chance I can swing even one vote for Bill Scranton."

Time Is Closing For Scranton's Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is closing in on Gov. William W. Scranton's late bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

With GOP leaders already gathering in San Francisco for the opening next Monday of the party's 1964 convention, the Pennsylvania governor has failed—so far — to take away from Sen. Barry Goldwater enough votes to preclude a first-ballot victory for the Arizona senator.

Two weeks ago Scranton expressed belief that many delegates who then favored Goldwater but were not pledged to him would start switching to the governor about the middle of last week.

No such exodus from the senator's ranks was evident. In fact, Goldwater gained delegate strength and the end of the week saw this first-ballot lineup in the Associated Press survey of 1,308 delegates:

Goldwater	710
Scranton	146
Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller	105
Henry Cabot Lodge	45
Sen. Margaret Chase Smith	15
Richard M. Nixon	3
Favorite sons	113
Uncommitted	186

Goldwater's total, substantially more than the 655 needed for the nomination, provided he hangs on to them, includes 118 committed by primary election laws, 257 instructed by state or district conventions, 62 personally pledged, and 273 favorable but not officially pledged.

Sources close to Scranton disclosed late last week that they were concentrating their efforts on some 340 delegates in 23 states, of whom about 180 were believed to be leaning to Goldwater. These sources said Scranton was only 75 or 80 votes away from stopping Goldwater.

Goldwater, on the other hand, is known to believe he has more than 700 delegates, but he is not yet claiming victory.

Not counted in the Associated Press survey of Goldwater delegates are votes which he could very easily pick up on the first ballot from the Ohio and Wisconsin delegations.

The Ohio delegation decided to cast a first-ballot vote for Gov. James A. Rhodes as a favorite son, but left the way clear for switching before the end of the roll call. This would give Goldwater at least 15 known supporters.

Wisconsin is pledged by state law to Rep. John W. Byrnes, but he may release the 30-vote delegation shortly before the first ballot. Estimates are that Goldwater would get more than half of those votes.

Despite the unfavorable mathematical situation, Scranton planned another visit to Illinois early this week in an attempt to arouse popular support which he hopes will be transformed into delegate votes.

Both Scranton and Goldwater met with the 58-vote Illinois delegation last week and when it was over 48 delegates said they favor Goldwater. The rest were listed as uncommitted. Scranton got none.

Pennsylvania Delegate Remains With Goldwater

HARRISBURG (AP)—Edward S. Swartz, one of two Pennsylvania delegates pledged to U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater in the Republican presidential race, stood firm Friday despite efforts to sway him to Gov. William W. Scranton.

Supporters of Scranton's 11th hour bid for the nomination are circulating petitions in Dauphin County aimed at influencing Swartz to back the Pensylvania governor.

But Swartz, a resident of Hummelstown and a delegate from the state's 18th Congressional district, has said he will support Goldwater to the end.

"I'd been told I would be flooded with petitions and who knows what else," Swartz said. "But it won't do them any good."

"I wuld never vote for Scranton now," he went on. "At one time I might have voted for him as vice president. But he didn't have any sincere and honest draft. He jumped in with no degree of popularity that I saw. His saying that Goldwater can't win and that his nomination would ruin the Republican party is bad."

Scranton maintained for months before entering the race he did not want the nomination and would accept it only on an "honest and sincere" draft from the people or delegates.

The petitions to Swartz appeared for the first time Thursday on desks at the county courthouse here, but officials said they did not know the source.

William G. Murphy, secretary to the governor and head of the Scranton - for - President headquarters here, issued a similar statement, saying the petitions "are not one of our programs."

State Tax Revenue Sets New Record

HARRISBURG (AP) — State tax revenue totaled a record $1.1237 billion during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to figures released Thursday by the Office of Administration.

The total was $155.8 million more than was collected during the previous year. Most of the increase resulted from the raise in the sales tax from 4 to 5 per cent.

Although the total revenue for 1963-64 was $5.3 milion short of revised predictions made in January, it still was $5.1 million more than the predicted figure when the year began last summer.

The sales tax, the state's largest revenue producer, brought in $75.459 million, compared with an estimate of $5.400 million.

Cigarette and liquor levies, which were hiked last year along with the sales tax, brought in less than anticipated.

Cigarette taxes returned $7.9 million, down $2.9 million from estimates. The office of administration blamed a discouraging federal report on the dangerous effects of smoking, which was issued in January.

The liquor tax dropped from an anticipated $6.330 million to $6.279 million.

Despite the decline from the January predictions, the Administration said sufficient lapses would be made in various appropriations to wind up the fiscal year with a $24 million surplus.

American Public Disfavors Student Rush For Rights

By Louis Harris
National Pollster

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — The American public, by an overwhelming 2 to 1, views with disfavor the efforts of northern students to push for civil rights for Negroes in Mississippi.

At the same time, an even larger majority—72 to 28 per cent — favors President Johnson's sending federal troops to the state to restore peace if violence breaks out. Even among white southerners, most resistant to the use of federal force, 52 per cent favor such action in such a case.

A carefully drawn cross-section of Americans was also asked if it favored or opposed the President's use of federal troops in Mississippi this fall if state authorities resisted current court orders to desegregate schools in Jackson, Biloxi and Leake counties. The result: 78 to 22 per cent in favor of the use of troops if necessary; white southerners support the move by 54 to 46 per cent.

Further questioning reveals that Mr. Johnson might stand to derive political benefits from the forthright use of federal power to quench an outbreak of violence or enforce school desegregation. Four times as many voters said they would think more of the President if he sent troops to Mississippi as said they would think less of him.

The use of troops, however, could lose votes for the Democratic President in the South—as much as a third of his present 60 per cent rating below the Mason-Dixon Line.

Despite southern defections, and despite general opposition to the current student movement, the survey shows conclusively that the American people would rally behind the President in a showdown over federal law enforcement of court desegregation orders.

Americans throughout the country were asked:

"This summer white and Negro students are going to Mississippi to organize Negroes to vote. Do you generally approve of this move or disapprove of it?"

	Total Public Per Cent
Approve	31
Disapprove	57
Not sure	12

Thus, on whether or not the students should have gone to Mississippi in the first place, a majority of the nation joined the South in its expressed opposition. Only Negroes and big-city residents of the North favored the movement.

Once the threat of violence and bloodshed emerged, however, the weight of public opinion shifted drastically to support the use of federal troops to maintain peace and order.

"If Mississippi broke out in shootings or killings this summer," Americans were asked, "do you think President Johnson should send in federal troops to keep peace and order, or do you think local and state police should handle the situation?"

	Total Public Per Cent
Send in federal troops	71
Not send troops	20
Not sure	9

In the East, West and Midwest, majorities of close to eight in every 10 people would favor such action. The South, not surprisingly, was lowest with a bare majority in favor.

When asked if the President's sending of troops to Mississippi, either to enforce the school desegregation order or to end bloodshed this summer, would make them think more or less of Mr. Johnson, Americans gave him their support:

If President Sent In Troops

	Total Public Per Cent
Think more of him	55
Think less of him	13
Make little difference	32

Politically, the effect on Mr. Johnson would be to shore up his already strong position among Negro, Catholic and Jewish voters and voters in the East and West. The South division on this issue: 35 per cent would think more of the President; 33 per cent would think less of him; the remaining 32 per cent say it would make no difference one way or the other.

In the past, majorities of Americans have supported previous Presidents when they called in federal troops to back up court integration orders: Eisenhower in Little Rock, Ark., and Kennedy in Oxford, Miss. However, no President has ever taken such action in an election year, let alone less than four months before election day.

Colorado Shifts To Scranton

DENVER (AP) — The first shift in Colorado's delegation to the Republican National Convention since William Scranton announced his candidacy occurred Saturday. A previously uncommitted delegate said she would vote for Sen. Barry Goldwater rather than the Pennsylvania governor. Observers say Goldwater now appears certain of 16 of Colorado's 18 votes on the first ballot. Gov. John Love is the only announced Scranton supporter in the delegation.

North Pole Closed On Cruelty Charge

SCOTRUN — The North Pole, an animal farm tourist attraction on Rt. 611 in Scotrun, has been closed to the public by the Pennsylvania Game Commission on charges of gross neglect and cruelty to animals.

John Doebling, Monroe County game protector, issued the closing order Wednesday after the Pennsylvania Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) brought charges against an employee of the menagerie for alleged ill-handling of animals.

M. K. Rowe pleaded guilty to neglect and cruelty charges and was fined $20 and $9 costs after a hearing before Justice of Peace John Smiley of Henryville, RD 1.

SPCA Complaint

Robert G. Hudson, agent for the state SPCA in Philadelphia, filed the complaint involving an Eskimo dog and pups, three bears, a Cebus monkey, beaver, raccoon and llama.

Last night, David Irwin, owner of the attraction, charged that Hudson and the SPCA are "trying to put me out of business."

Irwin, who is exhibiting Eskimo dogs at the Alaskan pavilion at the World's Fair, said Hudson told him, "He (Hudson) is going to close all small animal farms."

Hudson immediately denied the charges and said, "Never in my life have I made a statement like that and I resent the implication."

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin were at the fair when the arrest was made.

SPCA Pocono Survey

The SPCA agent is spending six weeks in the Pocono Mountains checking on animal treatment at various commercial establishments.

He made four recent visits to the North Pole.

In a prepared release, the SPCA said cages at the North Pole were "reported in filthy condition, with little or no water for the animals and that water so dirty it supported a culture of mosquito larvae."

The release said Hudson will re-inspect the premises next Wednesday "and if corrections have not been made he will reintroduce the charges, and they will be tried as individual cases rather than one combined cruelty charge."

At Wednesday's hearing Rowe was charged with six counts of neglect and cruelty.

"Rowe pleaded guilty and asked for leniency on the grounds he had only been employed for two weeks and was 'doing his best,' " according to the release.

Permit Expired

Doebling said Irwin's permit to operate a menagerie expired June 30 and no new application has been made to the game commission.

The game protector said he will not issue a new permit until the unsanitary conditions are corrected. He said Irwin must also complete fence repairs and rebuilding of cages within 30 days.

Mrs. Irwin, wife of the owner, said none of the SPCA charges mention the condition of animals at the North Pole because "they are in excellent condition. I spend my entire day caring for animals."

The Irwins contend the SPCA is harrassing them and makes inspections early in the morning before "we can get water changed from the day before and our cages cleaned."

According to Hudson, this prosecution is part of a concerted drive by the Pennsylvania SPCA to maintain humane conditions for animals in captivity.

"The only reason Irwin was not arrested befre," he said, "is that our first efforts are always directed toward education and correction. However, our advice has been totally ignored and the situation became intolerable."

Water Assn. Votes Support Of Bensinger As President

PHILADELPHIA — The executive committee of the Water Resources Assn. of the Delaware River Basin has unanimously refused to accept the resignation of its president, Atty. Charles Bensinger of Stroudsburg.

Bensinger submitted his resignation to the association's 48 directors on June 10, after he became embroiled in an alleged conflict of interest controversy over the proposed Tocks Island project.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis of East Stroudsburg, RD 1, charged at a recent congressional hearing that Bensinger is profiting from the development of Hidden Lake, which is within the boundaries of the proposed Tocks' recreation area.

Bensinger is a director of Western Heritage Properties Ltd., of Canada, the development firm.

He sent a letter offering to resign to association directors June 10, shortly after the hearings. The directors reported to the executive committee that they refused to accept the resignation.

Last Wednesday the executive committee gave Bensinger a vote of confidence and voted to retain him as president, after finding no conflict in his positions.

While replying to Mrs. Shukaitis' charges, Bensinger said boundaries of the proposed recreation area are only tentative and he received no "inside information" about the project through his position with the WRA.

Johnson, Scranton Aide, Tours Truck Blast Scene

STROUDSBURG — William Johnson of Stroudsburg, representing Gov. William W. Scranton, toured the Marshalls Creek disaster area Friday and was briefed on the results of state police investigations.

Johnson, assistant to the governor's secretary, will file a written report on the blast that killed six and submit it with recommendations to the governor.

"The governor wants to know exactly what happened and what is being done," Johnson said.

He was accompanied on his tour by Sgt. Michael Bowika, commander of the Stroudsburg state police sub-station; Stanley Komoshinsky, investigating fire marshall from Hazleton, and Marvin Abel, Monroe County civil defense director.

Johnson inspected damage to the Middle Smithfield Elementary School and said he will ask the Dept. of Public Instruction if it can render any assistance in repairing the building.

Church Tax Exemptions

The furor over the Supreme Court ban against Bible reading and prayer in public schools may soon be followed by a larger debate over the right of state governments to exempt churches from paying taxes.

The atheist whose lawsuit led to the Supreme Court Bible and prayer decision has started suit against the State of Maryland charging that church tax exemptions amount to state support for religion.

Mrs. Madalyn Murray of Baltimore argued that exemption of church taxes helps citizens who support churches by raising the tax burden of those who are not interested in any church.

The State of Maryland immediately challenged her contention, as expected, in its answer to her suit, saying that state legislatures have a right and duty to "accommodate the people in the exercise of their religion."

Mrs. Murray and her family fled to Hawaii recently after getting into an entanglement with police and a grand jury over the marriage of her 18-year-old son to a girl whose family protested the teaching of a theism by the Murrays. Her absence from the country may slow down or stop the progress of her latest law suit.

But the case could come before the Supreme Court if a constitutional issue is found and the court could find the nationwide practice of church tax exemptions unconstitutional.

Such a ruling would hurt every church congregation, rich and poor, in America. It would raise major financial difficulties for many of them.

Although all the legal arguments pro and con are not yet clear, it would appear that granting to churches of property tax exemptions does not constitute state support of one religion over another if the exemptions are granted to all legitimate religious organizations.

There can be little argument that tax exemptions for religious groups constitute state aid to religion. That is the clear intent of the exemptions.

Such exemptions are certainly not required by the U.S. Constitution, nor are they clearly allowed or forbidden.

The Supreme Court may find some argument for denial of church tax exemptions completely.

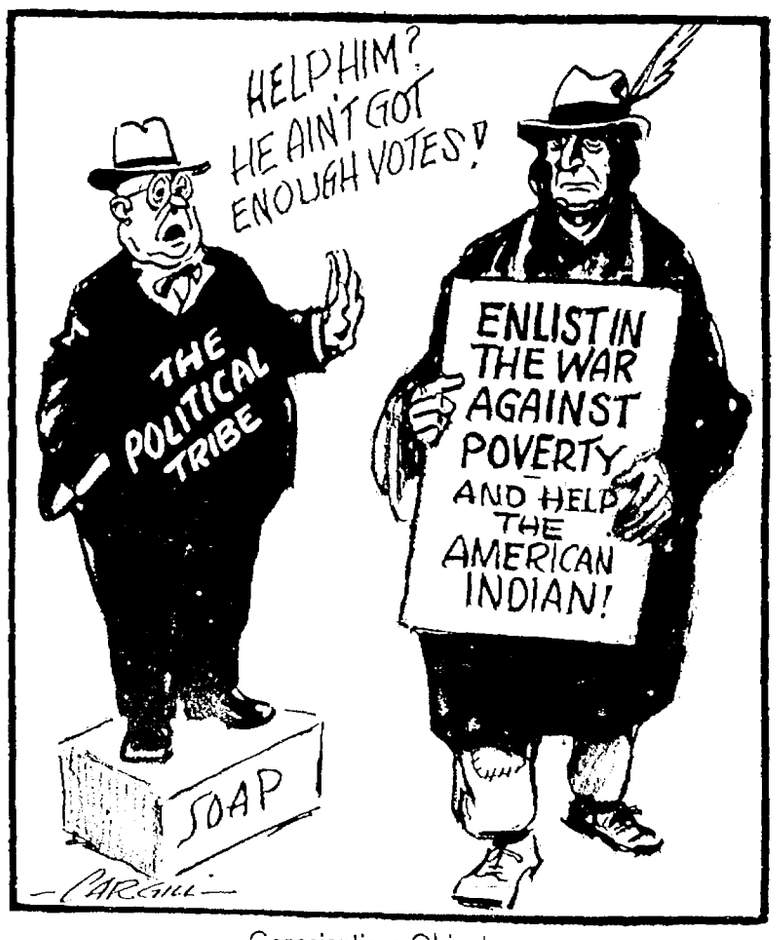
It may draw tighter restrictions for what can be included in church tax exemptions. There are many abuses of this exemption by churches which own non-religious properties for income purposes.

Or the court may simply refuse to hear the case for lack of a constitutional question bringing it into the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

The question is serious and its consequences far-reaching. The Supreme Court is unpredictable. It may find these exemptions a violation of the "establishment of religion" clause. It may start another major religious debate in America.

Comment Of The Day

"The whole trip must have been a complete waste of time for him."
—A Norwegian official commenting on Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's 19-day tour of Scandanavia.



Conscientious Objector

Walter Lippmann

Faithful Public Servant

By Walter Lippmann

In one respect at least Henry Cabot Lodge sems to have lost touch out there in Saigon with what is being thought and said here at home. When he asked President Kennedy for a difficult, not a plush, diplomatic assignment abroad and was offered South Vietnam, he accepted it, believing that he was to be ambassador of the United States.

He must be astonished to find on his return that in the eyes of some of his fellow Republicans he has not been the American ambassador. He has been the Johnson ambassador, and the very idea of his being a faithful public servant without regard to party is dismissed by Sen. Barry Goldwater as incredible and hypocritical.

Yet, what he has shown himself to be on his return to this country is exactly that, the faithful public servant who has had no ulterior purpose in serving the American government in its most dificult, dangerous and uncomfortable foreign embassy. It would be a bad day for the republic if his bred of public man were to disappear.

No one who knows the meticulous care with which President Johnson has listened to him can suppose that Mr. Lodge has been nursing some great grievance and resentment with which he would stoke up the fires of the election campaign. His long interview with the formidable New York Times staff shows him to be a prudent diplomat and a skilled and discriminating reporter.

He believes in the policy which he and his successor, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, have been conducting, and, as a good diplomat, he has avoided speculating on what the future will bring — be it an escalation of the war or an escalation of the search for a political solution.

What Mr. Lodge had to say about the nature of the war was highly informative as to the relations betwen political and military measures and also as to the degree and the kind of intervention caried out by North Vietnam. But what he refrained from talking about was no less impressive. There he was the true diplomat. For he did not say that we would, and he did not say that we would not fight a bigger war than we are now fighting in South Vietnam.

In my view, this reflects a fundamental rule of good diplomacy which the administration has drifted away from. It has let itself be chivied into making public declarations about our willingness and readiness to fight a great war in hypothetical and undefined circumstances. A country should threaten war specifically generalized threats of war. It should threaten was specifically and only under exactly defined circumstances.

The series of vague threats have, I realize, been intended to warn Ho Chi Minh and Mao Tse-Tung that we shall not be pushed out of Indo China China without using our full power, not merely our contingent in South Vietnam, to prevent it. We have wanted to make sure that the Chinese and the North Vietnamese did not act as if we would never fight.

Such a warning was useful. But it should have been delivered privately through diplomatic channels. It would have been at least as credible, and even more credible if it were carefully spelled out. Furthermore, it would not have compelled the adversary to make public counter threats and so give the impression that a war of words was on.

When such warnings are vague and are made publicly, they are open to the suspicion that they are not adressed to Peking and Hanoi, but to the voters here at home.

Mr. Lodge says that he does not see how a campaign issue can be made out of Southeast Asia. He must have meant that no rational issue could be raised by the Republican Party. For, theoretically, there are two possible issues that can be raised. One would be to insist that Southeast Asia is not a vital American interest and that, as Sen. Wayne Morse proposes, we should withdraw.

The Republican Party will certainly not take that line. The other issue would be to argue that the war can be won by threatening and if necessary using nuclear weapons. Not even Senator Goldwater will dare to campaign on that issue. There remains then only the present policy of reenforcing the resistance, building up the American military presence in the region and waiting for developments which will permit a succesfu political solution.

Some recent intelligence estimates, if we can believe them, indicate that Red China may not be able or willing to risk a military showdown over the conquest of Southeast Asia. We must be careful, however, to discount carefully all reports that tell us what we wish to hear, that our adversary is weak. He may in fact be weak. But the Chinese are a quarter of the human race, and they are brave. Moreover, we must avoid the extreme of wishful thinking, which is to believe that in a war between China and the United States the Soviet Union would be neutral or on our side.

Nevertheless, there are signs that favor a patient policy which stands firm and continuses to look for a solution. The signs are that China is probably not strong enough to expand in all directions at once and that a political stabilization in Southeast Asia may come to seem better than the risks of endless and incalculable struggle.

In any event, we have nothing to lose, and we may have much to gain by adhering to the prudent policy we are now pursuing.

The Pennsylvania Story

Scranton's Amateur Bid

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Have the big time political old pros taken over running the Scranton presidential campaign, calling the strategy shots, telling the Governor what to say, do—and how?

Not so at all, says gubernatorial secretary and campaign manager Bill Murphy, who insists "the Governor is running his own show—period."

Advice, suggestions and helpful hints from anyone, including the old pros, are always welcomed by the Governor, Mr. Murphy would add, but insists that just because all this may be offered it does not mean Mr. Scranton is "bowing to anyone."

"You can rest assured the Governor is the creator of his campaign strategy and that any defects or defaults that may be attributed to this strategy will be readily assumed by the Governor himself," the Scranton-man-on-the-scene here at headquarters insists.

Complaints and mumbles have been growing of late that the Scranton campaign as it has developed during the past week or two has not had the effectiveness, drive, punch and conviction his campaign for the governorship in 1962 engendered—and for that matter seemingly was engendered in the very early days of his current campaign.

The squawks for the most have come from sideline—sitting Republican ardents—armchair strategists — who seem to view in Mr. Scranton's campaign forays of late a strongly influencing touch of the far-away GOP old pros of the big time circuit.

In other words, the fear has been growing that the old Scranton campaign touch — the touch that in the past has made him successful in the face of strong odds—has been cast aside in favor of the big time pitch.

Actually this hasn't happened at all. It has been necessary to modify the strategies used successfully during Mr. Scranton's congressional and gubernatorial junkets, but fundamentally the basic format has remained unchanged.

Aides point out that the same guiding principles, concepts and aims that prevailed in the lesser campaigns for Congress and the governorship still prevail today — but that the overall campaign scope in view of the ofice at stake this time, has had to be changed somewhat. Remember too, Mr. Scranton at the moment has been concentrating on delegate support — not voter-at-large support.

For example, during the two previous successful Scranton campaigns one of the predominant themes developed along the strategy line was strong emphasis on the "Bill-and-Mary" theme; homey, togetherness, etc.

Actually this theme was an inadvertent development but it did become a hallmark of the Scranton campaign forays. Mary Scranton likes to campaign just as much as her husband; she thoroughly enjoys mixing and milling around with other people trying to sell them on the idea of her husband—and standing side by side with him.

An extrovert (at campaign time) she has no fear of being in public; it so happens she does make an excellent appearance with William Warren Scranton (whether in public or for a photo)—and she has more steam than many of her male counterparts.

All this more or less developed as a sideline campaign asset; not recognized at first, but capitalized upon effortlessly later.

The complaint seemingly arises now that in the current Scranton campaign, this has been shelved; the conviction being among the nettled and concerned ones that the big pro boys who have entered the picture have decreed playing down the Bill-and-Mary angle in favor of the great domestic and international issues.

This is true to certain extent; you're running in the biggest time of all in shooting for the presidency and strategies obviously must vary and be made to accommodate "for the moment".

The Bill-and-Mary theme and similar themes of past campaign successes are viewed by the Scranton camp as just as important as ever; have not been shelved or scrapped. They have been modified to meet demands of the current campaign but the basic Scranton campaign format remains essentially the same.

The old pros of the big time are having their say, it is true —but it's the Governor, as always, who makes the decision and lays out the dictates.

Heart-Warming Carnies

Disaster funds usually bring pros and cons on the feasibility of such campaigns.

Thankfully there has been little repercusion arising from the drive to help individuals struck by the recent Marshalls Creek area explosion.

While sadness prevails during such experiences, some good does come out after the catastrophe.

The other day we motored around the boroughs — Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg. We saw no less than five carnivals going with the expressed hope of adding a little more to the drive to aid persons victimized by the blast which took six lives.

The chores at the carnivals were being performed by kids — children blesed with cheer and knowledge that they were doing a good thing for a good cause.

reveal actions a good many of us grownups could follow. We get away with donating a dollar, five or ten spot. These youngsters, though, put their weight to the wheel and produce hard - earned money by self sacrifice.

Believe me, this carnival pitch is much more satisfying and truly comes from the heart.

Another point focused by the swell of children - operated carnivals is that you don't see an image of a juvenile delinquent among any of them.

They are too busy punching the lemonade, angling for a fish, and passing the cake to get into anything but a charitable venture.

Sorrowfully we feel for those maimed by the explosion. But within our dejected body springs a happy note injected by kids who have learned charity doesn't start at home.

The enterprising movements of these young tikes

The Allen-Scott Report

Wisconsin Key

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Senator Barry Goldwater's chances for a first ballot victory hinge largely as of this writing on Wisconsin's 30-vote delegation.

Key man to watch in this potentially history - making delegation is Representative John Byrnes, Wisconsin's "favorite son" candidate and ranking Republican, on the powerful House Ways & Means Committee that originates all tax and other revenue legislation.

If Byrnes should release the delegation before the end of the first balloting, at least 20 of its 30 votes are set to swing to Goldwater — thus putting him over the top for the presidential nomination.

These 20 Wisconsin votes would give the Arizonan the 655 he needs to win without either Ohio's 58 or Michigan's 48. In both these major delegations, Goldwater has significant support, but so far has been unable to definitely muster it on the first ballot.

Shoud Brynes, whom insiders credit with harboring "kingmaker ambitions," hold his full delegation in line for his "favorite son" candidacy on the first ballot, he might force the tense battle into a second ballot.

What would happen then is anyone's guess.

Currently, the crux of the strategy of the Scranton-Rockefeller-Lodge - etc. opposition to Goldwater is concentrated on blocking his winning on the first ballot and forcing a second or more counts — from their point of view, the more the better.

Similarly, averting that is the heart of Goldwater's strategy.

In both camps the significant behind-the-scenes maneuvering, dickering and politicking is centered on these crucial conflicting objectives. Goldwater is fighting furiously to nail down the nomination on the first ballot; his opponents just as intently are striving to prolong the voting in the belief that will undo him.

The Possible Price — In their effort to sway him, both sides are strenuously wooing Representative Byrnes. Important leaders are conferring with him.

So far none have made any headway. Byrnes is listening but remaining noncommittal.

The Wisconsinite is credited with having vice presidential ambitions. But there is little likelihod of their being realized, because of the disclosure of his involvement in a stock deal in which former Senate Democratic secretary "Bobby" Baker made a killing.

Due to this obstacle, Byrnes is said to strongly favor the selection of his close friend, Representative Gerald Ford, Mich., a ranking member of the Appropriations Committe and also the special commission investigating the slaying of President Kennedy.

It is significant that both camps have publicly lauded Ford, and expressed willingness to accept him as running mate.

However, it can be stated positively that neither has gone beyond that.

Representatives of Governor Scranton have told Byrnes that if the Wisconsin delegation will vote for him as "favorite son" on the first balot, they will talk "seriously" with him immediately thereafter — about the vice presidency and anything else he may want to discuss.

Goldwater lieutenants reportedly have been advising that a concrete understanding be reached with Byrnes before the convention convenes. Nothing has been done on that as yet.

Representative Silvio Conte, Mass., and former Representative Walter Judd, Minn., inner circle Scranton - Rockefeller - Lodge advisers, have urged Byrnes to aid the strategy to force the convention into two or more ballots. They have stressed the argument that "only in this way can a free and deliberate judgment be reached."

"If Goldwater really has the strength he claims," Byrnes was told, "then he can win on the second just as well as the first ballot. If he has to win with a blitz on the first round, then he obviously hasn't staying power and shouldn't get the nomination."

Dear Abby

Many Viewpoints On Baby Sitters

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think you are wrong to agree that a girl should baby-sit with her own brothers and sisters for nothing. Why should she pass up a chance to make herself $2 or $3 just to stay home and do the same for free?

If parents can't afford to pay sitters, they don't have any business having large families. I think it is terrible the way some parents make slaves out of their children.

As for what children "owe" their parents, I can't see where they owe them anything. Children don't ask to be born. You can use my letter if you want to, but please don't use my name.

"PAID"

DEAR ABBY: That gredy girl signed "UNPAID" should be ashamed of herself. I am not a girl. I am a 17-year-old boy, but I have been a sitter for my mother ever since I was 12 years old.

I sat with three younger sisters and a baby brother six nights a week for four years while my mother worked. You see, Miss Abby, my father died and that was the only way Mom could manage.

I wouldn't trade a bushel-basket full of dollars for the good feeling it gives me to know that I was able to help my Mom when she had it so rough.

THE MAN OF THE FAMILY

DEAR ABBY: We have a healthy, ablebodied, 17-year-old daughter. She baby-sits all over the neighborhood for 75 cents a hour, but when WE need a baby-sitter we have to hire one, because she is booked up with paid sitting jobs. She doesn't need the money because we give her a very generous allowance, but she is money mad.

We think it is good experience for young people to earn money, but wouldn't you think a high school senior would realize that money is not as important as volunteering an occasional helping hand at home?

MONEY MAD'S PARENTS

DEAR ABBY: Please tell UNPAID that the best things in life are free. When I was in my teens (back in the 1930's) I sat for many an hour and refused to accept pay when it was offered.

I am not referring to sitting at home with my own brothers and sisters. I would never dream of accepting money from my parents for that had it been offered to me, which it assuredly was not!

I used to volunter to care for the neighbors children because I wanted to do something for someone. I learned how to keep youngsters busy, entertained, and how to get them to behave without punishing them or even threatening to.

The experience I received in handling children more than compensated for the time I devoted to it. It is almost impossible to give something without getting at least as much in return. Sign me—

WELL PAID

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know how a child can justify accepting money from his parents for "sitting" with siblings. I happen to be the eldest daughter in a family where there were 14 children. I didn't just "sit" with the younger ones, either. I bathed them, dressed them, fed them, and did the diapers. If I had been paid for all the hours I "sat," I would be sitting pretty.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Cough Is Symptom Of Many Things

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A cough is a symptom — not a disease. Most coughs are caused by minor conditions that clear up readily with time and simple care.

Hacking coughs, tickling coughs, allergic coughs, spasmodic coughs, nervous coughs and smokers' coughs present an array of confusion.

Should one encourage a cough? Should one suppress a cough? Should one take a "drying out" mixture? A decongestant pill? An antihistamine? An expectorant compound?

It may be helpful to first understand the nature, mechanics and purpose of coughing.

In essence, a cough is a sudden contraction of the diaphragm and the muscles of the chest wall. Its purpose is to rid the lungs or the bronchial tree of irritating or offending substances.

Reaction To Irritate

Infections or inflammations of the lungs and the bronchi (like bronchitis, bronchopneumonia and pleurisy) irritate the delicate linings. A cough is nature's way of reacting to this irritation.

Certain allergies may produce asthmatic bronchitis or even asthma. In these conditions, too, a cough is a reaction to the irritation.

Foreign bodies in the lungs or the trachea (windpipe), noxious gases, and offending fumes will all stimulate spasms of coughing to expel the irritant.

Determine The Cause

An attempt to suppress coughing or to control it with medications is purposeless and of little value unless the exact cause of the cough is known. It is imperative to determine the cause and the nature of all presistent coughs. This should be done before any attempt is made to quell the coughing.

Physical examination with stethescope and with precussion (tapping the chest with the fingers), coupled with fluoroscopic or X-ray examination are vital in investigating a chronic cough. Sputum examination and cultures are sometimes necessary to confirm a diagnosis.

Can Study Tissue

When necessary, specialists can actually look directly into the bronchial tree and lungs, take cultures, and even remove small pieces of tissue for microscopic study.

There are many safe drugs available which are very effective in controlling coughs. Some direct their "suppressing power" to the cough center in the brain.

Presistent, devitalizing coughs can be very annoying. But "be patient, patients" if your physician does not immediately stop that cough. His primary concern is to discern the nature of the cough and to treat the condition which is causing it.

Cough Sometimes Useful

It is not always desirable to stop coughing. In many cases, the cough is a valuable body defense mechanism and serves a useful purpose. When the lungs or the bronchial tree are clogged by congestion or foreign bodies, coughing often helps to eliminate these offending substances.

The safest, wisest and most effective way of stopping a cough is by curing its cause.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

So Long

British soldiers stationed in Malay - speaking countries became acquainted with a new form of salutation.

Upon meeting or bidding someone farewell, a Malay would utter the word "salang" and bow low, with his right palm against his forehead.

The Malay word was a corruption of the Arabic "salaam" or "salam," which meant "peace" or "health."

The British soldiers adopted the Malay word, but omitted the ceremonial bow which accompanied it. In adopting "salang," the British soldiers corrupted it to "so long" and used it only in bidding someone farewell.

The soldiers introduced "so long" to Britain, and it spread to the United States.

Marx-Cesanek Crash Suit Filed

STROUDSBURG — A damage suit arising from a July 5, 1963, auto accident on Rt. 209 in Minisink Hills that claimed four lives has been started in Monroe County Court in Stroudsburg.

Atty. Edwin Krawitz of Stroudsburg on Friday filed papers for the executors of the four dead people, directing the prothonotary to issue summonses in trespass against five defendants.

The papers were filed for Carl Marx, administrator of the estates of Edward Marx Jr. and Edward Marx Sr., and Michael J. Cesanek Jr., administrator of the estates of Catherine M. Cesanek, Mary Ann Marx and the unborn baby of Mary Ann Marx.

All the plaintiffs live in Northampton County.

Listed as defendants are Spaulding Bakeries, Inc.; Clifford L. Oberst; Drew L. Welsh, Spaulding truck driver; W. S. Peeney, Inc.; and James C. Sebring, Peeney oil truck driver.

The accident occurred at 1:55 p.m. in front of the Pococabana Lodge on Rt. 209. The victims were passengers in a car driven by Edward Marx Sr.

According to the police report, a westbound tractor-trailer owned by Spaulding and operated by Welsh veered across the road and struck the car head-on after hitting the rear of a westbound oil truck owned by the Peeney Co. and driven by Sebring.

Welsh was found not guilty on four counts of involuntary manslaughter after a jury trial last September.

Travel Trailer Caravan Completes Tour Of India

KABUL, Afghanistan — The Wally Byam Around the World Caravanners have completed their 11-week trailer tour of India and Nepal, a more than 5000-mile circuit of the countryside which took them as far north as the Himilayan capital city of Katmandu and as far south as Cape Comorin, land's end on the Arabian Sea.

The caravan of 44 travel trailers, towing and service vehicles is now visiting the holy Lands, with an encampment at Jerusalem, and scheduled stops at Damascus, Syria and Balbek, Lebanon. Following these, it will head northward into Europe through Istanbul; Turkey, to arrive there in June. By next Fall the trailers will have toured all of Europe, Scandinavia plus large sections of the Soviet Union.

Traveling with their trailer homes over India's sometimes extremely dificult roads, through all kinds of weather, they visited virtually every major city and town. Starting with Calcutta on Jan. 1, these included Varanasi (Banaras), Nagpur, Hyderabad, Madras Cape Comorin, Coimbatore, Mysore, Bombay, Mandu, Agra, (site o the Taj Mahal) and Delhi.

There were many stops in being many far from the usual mote places in between, includ- tourist routes through India. Among them were a visit to a Russian-Rumanian community built around the Soviet-sponsored construction project at Mathion dam; an American A.I.D. project at Hetaura; Budh Gaya, where by tradition the Budha received his enlightment; and Sevagram, the model village school and community founded by Mahatma Gandhi.

As throughout all of Southeast Asia, the Caravanners were received with almost overabundant welcomes in India and Nepal. Crowds of irrespresible Indians met them at every encampment, pressing in upon them by the thousands to satisfy their curiousity and to ask innumerable questions in school book English.

The Caravan pased through many remote areas where elections were in the offing and where Communist Party signs proclaimed hostility toward imperialism, particularly American imperialism. There were no hostile incidents of any kind ever, and they were as well received in these places as elsewhere.

The Caravan was feted by three maharajas, at Varansi, Travanacore and Mandu, allowed to park on their ancient estate lands and taken on tours of their palaces. India's territorial governors frequently met with the Caravanners and arranged elaborate receptions for them.

In Katmandu, Nepal, the Caravanners were privileged to be welcomed to an exclusive and sacred coming-of-age ceremony for the prince of the household of King Mahendra. They were alongside ambassadors and diplomats of many foreign countries, some of whom had not themselves been so treated during 15 years of residency in Nepal.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: Can you give me some information about painting a kitchen? Is enamel all right? Can I paint one or two walls a different color? What color paint should I use to make a high ceiling appear lower?

ANSWER: A good quality enamel is ideal for a kitchen, since it protects as well as beautifies. Enamel makes a tough coating, essential where ordinary household duties cause a lot of moisture, as they do in a kitchen. Also, enamel can be washed quickly and easily without damage to the surface. The painting of one or two walls a different color is especially desirable in a kitchen which is either boxlike or long and narrow. Painting a wall a different coor in a box-like kitchen gives it a more interesting appearance. Painting two walls a different coor in a long, narrow kitchen gives the whole area a wider effect, but be sure to paint the side walls a light color and the narrow end walls a deeper hue. To make a high ceiling appear lower, paint it a deeper shade than the walls. Enamel is flowed onto the surface in long, smooth strokes. Then, without refilling the brush, cross-stroke over the covered area. Then, a third time, and again without refilling the brush, stroke long and smooth again. This will spread the enamel evenly and prevent runs and sags.

Lukens Steel Supplies Material

COATESVILLE, Pa., — More than 5,000 tons of a new plate steel, developed and rolled by Lukens Steel Co., are playing a vital role in the $27 million Yards Creek hydro-electric project now under construction at Blairstown, N.J.

The new material, designed "Lukens penstock steel," was custom made for this project as an economical alternate to the steel originally specified. It offers a lower cost per pound plus added savings through its higher strength-to-weight ratio.

This special steel is being formed into an 18 feet and 19 feet diameter single conduit—called a penstock — which will join upper and lower reserviors on the Kittatinny Mountain. The penstock is part of a recirculating pumped - storage plant slated for start-up in 1965.

By day, water will gush downhill through Lukens plate steel penstock to a spinning turbine that will generate 330,000 kilowatts of power for homes and factories in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland. The plant will be producing electricity during peak demand hours. At night, when needs lessen, the turbine will reverse and become a pump, forcing water back to the top of the mountain to be reused for the next cycle when customer usage demands are high.

Pocono Playhouse To Stage Popular Hit 'Sound Of Music'

MOUNTAINHOME — Mrs. Rowena Stevens, producer-manager at The Pocono Playhouse, will present another major musical hit this summer, Richard Rogers-Oscar Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music", in a two week engagement.

The musical named by a New York critic a "titanic hit," will open Monday, July 13 and play through Saturday, July 25. After this engagement the company will go on tour.

Adapted from the book, "The Trapp Family Singers," the play tells the moving story of Maria, a postulant at the Nonnberg Abbey in Austria during early days of the Second World War.

Lovely Maria finds during the course of the play that her true vocation is outside the quiet religious life. The Mother Abbess teaches her "To reach out to Life."

Maria accepts the love offered her by Captain Von Trapp. The wedding in the Abbey is one of the highlights of the musical.

Dean Norton will play the role of the handsome Von Trapp and Evelyn Wycoff will co-star with him as Maria. Miss Wycoff delighted Broadway play-goers for her performance as Laurie in "Oklahoma."

Since then she has sung the leads at one time or another in most of the "R and H" hits. The remarkable score and lyrics for "Sound of Music" were created by "R and H" — Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II, whose names on a marquee have been a guarantee to playgoers of a special evening in the theatre.

"Oklahoma" was their first collaboration. For this score, as well as "South Pacific", the team shared a Pulitzer Prize. The two also picked up an Academy Award for their song, "It Might as well be Spring" from their film "State Fair."

Other honors came along with their authorship of "Carousel," "Allegro," "Flower Drum Song" and "The King and I" among others.

Curtain time for the evening performances of "The Sound of Music" will be at 8:40 with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30. Theatre goers are advised that no one will be seated during the first two scenes.

Mrs. Rowena Stevens said it is a production which may be enjoyed by all ages. A special matinee will be given for campers in the area.

Jirolanio was picked last week by the county's Democratic Executive Committee. Other Democratic candidates receiving support were state Representatives Jeanette Reibman and James F. Prendergast, both of Easton.

Verona's term runs to 1966.

Irem Temple String Band To Perform

PAUPACK — Irem String Band Concert will perform in the new Wallenpaupack Area Joint School on Rt. 6 near Walsonvile Dam on Lake Walenpaupack Saturday at 8:15 p.m., July 18.

The Irem String Band was formed in 1957 and consists of 50 members including a director, two captions, six banner carriers and 40 playing members.

They first appeared at the International Convention of 1958 in Chicago. The String Band was so well liked during the seven mile parade that they were invited to perform in Medina Temple later that evening, a privilege that was extended to only a few of the hundreds of units attending the convention.

The band has also appeared in Atlantic City and Baltimore.

Two years ago the String Band at the Orange Bowl in Miami, Florida, entered the large field under the bright lights with black ostrich plumes and sequined uniforms decorated in pink and black. The entire crowd stood and applauded.

Although the String Band is one of Irem Temple's youngest units, it has enjoyed much favor. Its popularity has brought many invitations throughout the East.

The String Band was featured at the East-West Shrine Game in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Virginia, in 15. It also appeared as an added attraction at the 1958 Calvalcade of Champions, The Eastern United States Drum Corps, Championship Competition, at Bucknell Stadium, Lewisburg, Pa.

Proceeds from their various appearances and concerts have been used to acquire uniforms and equipment.

STROUDSBURG — Possibility of a local course in boating safety was raised at the recent Kiwanis meeting by Commander Harry Beers of Flotilla 91, U.S. Coast Guard, during a talk on boating safety.

Beers, who also showed a film on courtesy afloat, said that the course would be given next September if there was enough interest expressed.

His appearance was in conjunction with boating safety week.

In other business, the Kiwanis board voted to donate $50 to the Marshalls Creek Disaster Relief Fund, according to William N. Walter, president.

Guests of the Kiwanis at the meeting were Paul L. Heath, City Line, Philadelphia; Vincent Ramuni of Easton; Kiwanis Lt. Governor Edwin J. Cope; Rev. Gil Dodd; and L. B. Backeusto all of Emmaus.

Mrs. Dale Wesley Eden

(Lens Art Photo)

Miss Mary J. DiPierro Weds Dale Wesley Eden

Roseto — Mary Josephine DiPierro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DiPierro of 103 Garibaldi Ave., Roseto, became the bride of Dale Wesley Eden at noon on June 27 in Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Roseto.

Mr. Eden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Eden of 614 Center St., Bangor. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Eugene Davis, C.M.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a sheath gown of slipper satin, with a scoop neckline bodice and long sleeves. The bodice and front of the skirt were heavily beaded with sprays of seed pearls, crystals and peralized higle beads.

The back neckline had two bows which held a detachable Watteau train of cathedral length. The headpiece was a crown of pearls and aurora crystals with a three-tiered silk illusion veil. The third tier was of cathedral length.

Entering the church, she carried a single long-stem American Beauty rose. She placed this at the foot of a statue of the Virgin Mary before going to the altar.

She then carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of philanopsis orchids with a cluster of pink rose pedals.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Douglas Beck, of Cookstown, N.J., who wore a coquette taffeta gown with detachable train and carried a cascade bouquet of pink sensation roses backed with green ivy and babies' breath.

The maid of honor was the sister of the bride, Miss Francis M. DiPierro of Philadelphia. She wore a heartbeat taffeta gown with detachable train and also carried pink sensation roses backed with ivy and babies' breath.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Salvatore Lopiano of Bangor and Miss Antoinette DiPierro of Roseto, another sister of the bride. Both were dressed in heartbeat taffeta gowns with detachable trains and carried sensation roses, ivy and babies' breath.

The flowergirl was Miss Dannette Eden of Stroudsburg, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Eden of Stroudsburg. She is a niece of the groom. She was dressed in a heartbeat taffeta gown with a coquette sash and carried a miniature bouquet of roses, ivy and babies' breath.

The best men was Charles R. Eden of Stroudsburg, brother of the groom. The ushers were Richard McFall of Hollywood, Fla., Wayne Hocking of Drexel Hill, and Richard B. Eden of Bangor.

The organist was Miss Grace DelGrosso. The men's choir of the church sang uder the direction of Mrs. Marie DePaolo.

A reception was held in the Phillipsburg Elks Home.

The bride graduated from Pius X High in Roseto. She is a member of the American Institute of Banking, and is employed as a teller at the College Hill Branch of the Easton National Bank and Trust Co.

The groom graduated from Bangor High School and is also a member of the AIB. He is employed as a loan clerk in the same bank. He served two years in the Army and is presently enrolled in the Dale Carnegie Course. He attended Churchman's Business College.

Fabric-Ated V-P Position In Material-Istic Manner

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

ONE WAY to solve the problem of the husband who does not want you to work is to learn so much about his work he'll want you to join his firm!

That's the story of energetic Glory Einiger who presently works as vice-president in charge of special products in her husband's fabric mills.

In Retailing

"Before I was married I worked in retailing," she told us. "But when I married Jack, he was a man who didn't want his wife to work. He definitely felt two young people coming home at night with two different sets of job problems was too much."

As a result Glory Einiger left the stimulation of the business world and settled down to being a wife and a mother. But, as she sat in the park while her children slept or played, her mind craved stimulation. And she got what she wanted when her husband began his own fabric business.

Shared Enthusiasm

"It got to be like a child," Mrs. Einiger said. "I learned everything I could about it and shared my husband's enthusiasm in every way.

"Gradually, as the business grew and the children became older, I went on business trips with my husband and got to know customers and business associates. I also entertained a lot. I believe this kind of exposure is good for every woman.

"Then in 1960, when my husband moved his mill to New England, I got a chance to return to business when we decided to open a mill outlet store in an old barn to sell luxury items such as shirts, slacks, suits and coats from fabrics we could salvage.

Enthusiastic About Materials, She Learned All About Them.

"Supervising the outlet became my responsibility," she said, "and in many ways I believe this job was a natural for a woman who had been a housewife. You have to be a good homemaker to salvage things and make them luxurious."

As time went on Mrs. Einiger succeeded so well with fabrics that she began to create other things, including the colorful blankets and throws she showed us in her office. As a result she's now in charge of the division making similar items at the mills.

Active Volunteer

Besides her business and family life, Glory Einiger still has energy left and works as an active volunteer in the Woman's Division of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

This year, as one example of her extra energy, she was chairman of the organization's "Spirit of Achievement" luncheon honoring six women plus a husband and wife team for outstanding contributions in public service, philanthropy and the arts.

"Being in business teases your mind," she says. "Volunteer work gives you a sense of belonging and inner contentment."

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

For the past several days our Keystone Room has been the scene of mysterious hammerings and poundings as Harold Albert and Claude Miller transformed it from a large, empty space into an area devoted to rods, racks, and dressing rooms. In the meantime, Marlene Andrews [illegible] suggestions on what might be termed "dis-dress signals" as we racked our brains for a name that would describe cleverly the event opening today in this area of our store.

By noon Wednesday, hundreds of dresses had been hung around the wall . . . and all were covered with muslin sheeting against the peeping eyes of the store personnel who wandered through, enroute to lunch, and always took time to inspect the merchandise. By mid-afternoon, the panels for the dressing rooms were erected, and anyone unfortunate enough to come by at that precise moment was immediately commissioned to hold this or that until it was nailed in place. At one time, Carrie Rusk, Bill Wells, and myself were serving as temporary braces while Claude and Harold debated the next step in their building plans.

At 3:15, Marlene and I were still considering a name. Dress Spectacular? Dress Bonanza? Dress Parade? After each suggestion one of us was certain to curl her lip in a nasty sneer and say, "NO!" Edna Bush of our fabrics department had the cleverest contribution to offer, I think. She said, "Call it galore-ious dresses . . . a sale of dresses galore."

I nodded. "That's good, Edna . . . I'll use that." Edna grinned. "If you do, I want a commission."

"If I do, you'll get credit in my column . . . that's about all."

"Oh, pshaw," she said resignedly, heading back to her department.

"Maybe," I remarked to Marlene, "we could say . . . WYCKOFF'S IS SENDING UP DIS-DRESS SIGNALS. SEE OUR SENSATIONAL DRESS SALE . . . NOW."

"Ye-s," Marlene drawled. "Dis dress is 8.00. Dis dress is 8.00 too!"

I'm not sure what had come over us . . . blame it on the heat. At any rate, when I sat down to my typewriter, I still had no name for it . . . and I don't now. But I truly think it is one of the finest opportunities we have ever offered to purchase clothes, in season, at a price of just 8.00. In my personal snooping through the rack, I saw one dress in particular that I like very much. It is arnel . . . sleeveless with a jacket. When I showed it to Mardee Albert she said, "Yes, that's a lovely one . . . it was made to sell for 20.00. Be sure to try it Monday."

In brief the story is this: as of today we have 1200 lovely summer dresses in our Keystone Room, sizes 10 to 20 and 12½ to 24½. Regularly priced from 12 to 25.00 these dresses are now just 8.00 . . . for one week only. There are prints and solids . . . cottons, sheers, crepes, miracle blends, and whipped cream . . . all washable, all wonderful. Many are sleeveless, but there are some with tiny sleeves to satisfy those of us who prefer having arms partially covered. Some are sheaths; some have full skirts. As I said, a few have jackets. And all are famous brand dresses you'll be proud to own.

Whatever management, Marlene, or fate decides to call it, in my language this week's Keystone Room event is just a terrific opportunity to buy smart dresses inexpensively. Galore-ious dresses!

Cy Barrett Says

Tipping Is Proper

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

Through your column, I want to take my cause direct to the people. I hate tipping and I hate those who hover around me in eating places, waiting for a handout. The restaurants pay the waiters and waitresses. Why should I join in and make them fatter with gratuities? According to Webster's dictionary, a gratuity is "a gift of money" — and I am not giving! This has gotten me some angry stares and poor service but I am holding out for others to join me in this cause.

MR. NO-TIPP

DEAR MR. NO-TIPP:

About 700,000 waiters and waitresses would like to spill slightly spoiled chowder on your blue serge suit. They usually receive a very small salary from their employers and make up the rest of their livelihood through tips. So entrenched is this custom that food prices in restaurants would rise if tipping was abolished.

The Internal Revenue Service is very tip-conscious and eagerly expects to tax waitresses and waiters on 15 per cent of the food tabs they handle. You have the wrong idea of tipping and gratuities. Despite what Webster says, a tip is something you owe for services rendered, whether those services be terrific or terrible.

Personnel entitled to tips include (besides waiters and waitresses) bellhops, taxi drivers, wash room attendants, garment checkers and shoe shiners. Recently, I waited at an airport while two sailors had their shoes shined. The first sailor tipped the expert shoe shiner $1 and the second walked off without tipping. At this, the old bootstrap philosopher turned to me and said, "People are good and bad. They average each other out."

CY

DEAR CY:

The federal government is supposed to want more women to work for it, and here I am! Where do I apply for a job with Uncle Sam? I can type and am quite attractive (even for a 26-year-old widow).

DAPHNE

DEAR DAPHNE:

As long as you can type, I'm sure bureaucracy will overlook your age. For a competitive civil service job, check with your nearest civil service office on the examination schedule. If you specifically wish to work in the nation's capital, write: Womanpower, U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D.C. 20415.

CY

DEAR CY:

In February, in addition to other jobs, I was also assigned duties of purchasing agent for the small company which employs me. I get product-research questionnaires from various suppliers and am asked only to fill out and mail them back. My signature is not required. At the bottom of these sheets is usually the heading, "Other remarks."

I have written in some pretty blunt statements (as well as complimentary remarks) about various produces. Putting my thoughts in writing in this manner has made me jittery, however. Can questionnaires, without my name or signature, be traced to me?

TED E. V.

DEAR TED:

Yes. Some firms, conducting marketing research, code their questionnaires so the individuals answering them can be readily identified. One system is to pencil in small dots which look like imperfections in the paper. By lining up the dots on a scale or grid, a number is produced. It is then a simple matter to check who has sent that questionnaire.

One large corporation periodically sends out questionnaires coded in different ways to its corporate prospects and customers. By analyzing their answers and recorded remarks, the firm determines who is happy, who is miffed, and who might be susceptible to a heavy sales pitch.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Monday, July 6, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be sure you put things in order before you begin a project, or you may be "all mixed up" later. Have details and needs straight in your mind early.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — This can be a dandy day if you have spent the past several as YOU know you should. Develop your ideas along the lines which past experience has shown to be most profitable and satisfying.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Banking, advertising, travel and some other matters will have ups and downs but, by sticking to your job and doing the best you can, you will see the day through satisfactorily.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Note Gemini: your outlook similar. Accommodate to necessary changes. Move with an air of built-in stability. Chosen goals are nearer. Give, to get.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Much competition in beneficial areas. This is the time to do your best. Don't think too long before taking due action, but guard against impulsiveness, too.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Touchy in spots. People about you may seem less open-minded and enthusiastic now. But you can keep the picture well balanced. It may take some doing, but it will be worth it.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — New offerings indicated. Not all should be accepted without question. On the other hand, you could delay and forfeit certain successes, too. So watch each step.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Consolidate gains made through extended efforts last week. Implement good ideas and embody them into future schedule. Conclude pending matters before adopting new programs.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Dynamic thought and action should be yours this day. Some offerings will be constructive, others to be rejected. Choose well, choose early.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Valuable prizes may be looked up in the least expected places. So you must hunt, think, listen, and hunt some more. Done earnestly, this can be a wonderful game.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — No puzzle about this day if YOU don't inject useless complexities. Have necessary facts at fingertips, but don't clutter your thinking with non-pertinent subject.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Take steps to make this new week a profitable one. Stick to necessary tasks and put aside irrelevant affairs. Concentrate on helpfully productive matters.

YOU BORN TODAY: Your tenacity, sympathy, and understanding of others are potent. Your weapons for happiness and success are so varied and numerous that you should begin to come naturally to develop your finest and have a truly rewarding life. Forget slights and disappointments, or you will slide backwards into indecision, dejection. Look hopefully ahead. There will be much activity in the next few months; keep tuned to trends and remain soundly progressive. Keep up your inborn interest in the arts. Birthdate of: John Paul Jones, American Naval officer, adventurer.

105 GOP Platform Builders Will Not Straitjacket Barry

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — The 105-member Republican Platform Committee meets in San Francisco today to work out a platform to be presented to the National Convention on July 14. Sen. Barry Goldwater is perhaps chief among those practical politicians who believe a party platform should not be a uniform for the candidate let alone a straitjacket.

The Republican Presidential candidate apparent has frequently expressed his distaste for the 1960 G.O.P. platform. He has called platforms in general "at best . . . a packet of misinformation and lies."

In days when he had less reason for weighing words, Goldwater gave his views on platforms in a copyrighted interview in "U.S. News & World Report."

He said that in 1960 he had outlined for the G.O.P. platform committee a "statement of principles." This was a one-page list of 12 statements.

In general, Goldwater said: "Say we included a simple statement like: 'We believe in the freedom of the individual.' All right. Sen. Javits could take that in New York and apply it to civil rights, the Negro question, everything else. I can take it and apply it to right-to-work. I can apply it to states' rights. But we shouldn't get ourselves into a box."

Goldwater's realistic desire for a brief statement of two-way principles is not likely to be satisfied by the Republican Paltform Committee at its pre-convention sessions.

The committee is to hear all the major candidates and hundreds of other witnesses. All the "moderate" candidates have expressed in no uncertain terms their determination to press for a "progressive platform." The prospect is for something like the 1960 G.O.P. platform in spades.

The Goldwater delegates, who will be among the majority of the platform committee, are unlikely to pick a fight. The senator already has promised if elected to enforce the civil rights bill he voted against.

He has the complete support of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the principle Republican architect of that bill, and of Charles Percy, Illinois gubernatorial candidate, who was the principal architect of the progressive 1960 G. O. P. platform.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R, Wis), G.O.P. platform chairman, on June 29 told the National Press Club that this year the platform will be "much more important than the candidate."

PMBL Plays Weekend Pair As A's Maintain Top Spot

STROUDSBURG — Pocono Mountain Baseball League teams played two games over the long Fourth of July weekend, and when the dust cleared, the Stroudsburg A's still clung to a precarious one-game edge over Kunkletown.

The teams played a game Saturday, and went nine innings yesterday.

Bushkill and Reeders were the only double winners. All the rest split except for Saylorsburg and West End, which dropped two.

Stroudsburg A's

The A's dropped Saturday's game with Reeders, 2-1. Chronister homered for the losers' only run, but Reeders pecked out two in the seventh for the win, picked up by hurler Frailey.

The A's ran amok for four runs in the first inning and topped the Poconos on Sunday. Lew Fish had two A hits. Harold Strunk was the winner. Warren Loney lost, giving up all the runs. He was replaced by Dave Pierson, who pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

Bushkill

Bushkill won two, dropping Saylorsburg 2-1 on Saturday and blasting winless West End, 20-13, on Sunday.

Bushkill scored in every inning but the first and third in amassing their 20 runs. Wescott homered for the winners; Rise homered for the losers.

Bowmanstown

Bowmanstown lost Saturday's tilt with the Poconos, 8-7. Moreken homered for the winners.

On Sunday Bowmanstown shed Saylorsburg by the identical score, 8-7. There were seven doubles in the game.

Kunkletown

Kunkletown split to preserve its second place standing. On Saturday, the Eldred Township nine walloped West End, 14-2. Leslie hit two home runs during this fray.

On Sunday, Reeders smashed through for four runs in the second inning to topple the Kunkletowners, 5-4.

Meckes clobbered a triple for the losers and Starner and Johnson hit triples for the winners. The double Reeders win moved them into a tie for third place.

Next Sunday's games are West End at A's; Poconos at Bushkill; Reeders at Bowmanstown, and Saylorsburg at Kunkletown.

Tokyo Track Chance Good

By BOB GREEN

NEW YORK (AP) — This country's premier track and field athletes, gunning for a spot on the team that will represent the United States in Tokyo this fall, surpassed seven Olympic records last weekend and prompted Bob Giegengack into some uncharacteristic optimism.

"Right now I'd say our chances are pretty good," the U.S. Olympic coach said after watching the Olympic track and field trials Friday and Saturday at Randall's Island.

All-Stars Busy In Sunday Games

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Four All-Star pitchers worked Saturday and eight more took the mound Sunday leaving only three hurlers sufficiently rested for Tuesday's annual mid-summer classic between the American and National Leagues at Shea Stadium here.

Killebrew: Brute Power

Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Camilo Pascual of the Minnesota Twins appeared the logical starters on the basis of availability and the logic of opening with right-handed pitchers to oppose predominantly right-banded lineups.

Each starting batting order contains only one full-time left-handed hitter. They are outfielders Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs and Tony Oliva of the Twins. Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankes' brilliant center fielder, is, of course, a switch hitter.

Tix Move Fast

Some 40,000 tickets have been sold for the 35th summer meting slated to start at 12 noon, EST. Shea Stadium capacity is 55,000.

The six-day heat wave in this city broke Sunday and pleasant 75-80 degree weather man predicted. The game will be on national television.

The National League, a 5-3 victor at Cleveland last year, ruled a slight favorite to make it two in a row and even the over-all series at 17 victories apiece.

The American League, which won the opener in 1933, took 12 of the first 16. The National has been the superior in recent years, winning 12 of the last 18. One game ended in a tie.

Drysdale, with an 11-7 record during the regular season, last pitched on Friday when he defeated the New York Mets 6-2. The 27-year-old right-hander has been effective in previous All-Star tilts despite his 0-1 record.

The 6-foot-6, 208-pounder, in four games, permitted only six hits, walked four and struck out 14 in 11 innings. He boasts a 2.45 earned run average.

Pascual, with a 9-6 record for the Twins, pitched eight innings Saturday, suffering a 2-1 defeat by the Yankees. The 30-year-old Cuban also lost his only All-Star decision, allowing four hits in six innings, walking two while striking out five on a 3.00 ERA.

All But 2 Work

With the exception of lefty Chris Short of Philadelphia, right-handed relief star Dick Radatz of Boston and Drysdale, all of the 15 picked pitchers toiled over the wekend.

Jim Bunning, the Phillies' perfect game pitcher who had been the National League's probable starter, worked 10 tough innings against San Francisco Saturday.

Gary Peters, Chicago White Sox southpaw, and John Wyatt, Kansas City's relief ace, also pitched Saturday.

ESSC Grad Inked By Tiger Fla. Club

By Stan Schaffer
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — He worked long and hard at baseball — now he's in training with the Detroit Tigers' farm club at Sarasota, Fla.

This is John C. Ferguson Jr., 1964 graduate of East Stroudsburg State College and resident of Hazlet, N.J. He was president of his class and graduated with a B.S. degree.

"He's been playing baseball since he was six years old. I think it was called the midget league," John C. Ferguson Sr., proudly said. "Later, he played for the Little League. He always played shortstop or second base," his father added.

"During his high school years at Clifton High School, he played shortstop and second base on the high school baseball team. He was known as 'The fastest hands in high school', according to a column in the Newark News," his father said.

In addition, he made all-star for the state of New Jersey while at Clifton High School. From Clifton High, he went to East Stroudsburg State College. He played basketball and baseball during his four years at East Stroudsburg. He is also a qualified coach of baseball and basketball.

Ferguson graduated from the health and physical education curriculum at the college. He was also on the dean's list.

The five foot 11 inch 165 pound athlete also participated in Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts. He worked as a scout leader to help further his teaching career. He was also a member of the National Rifle Assn.

Also, he participated in intramural sports, athletic council, and was one of the founding brothers of the Sigma Pi Fraternity, the first national fraternity of East Stroudsburg State College.

John C. Ferguson Sr. who is an executive engineer for Ronson Corp. at Woodbridge, N.J., is in charge of Ronson's plants in the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

"He'll be 22 years-old on July 4th," his father said. "I've always liked the fact that he liked sports. He was a good sportsman — he could grin and bear it," the elder Ferguson said.

"He signed on with the Tigers about six or eight weeks ago. He tried out with the Yankees and the Dodgers in New york.

Nicklaus Rallies; Wins Whitemarsh

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP) — Chunky Jack Nicklaus made up a six-stroke deficit in the final round Sunday with a five-under-par 67 for a 72-hole total of 276 to win the $125,000 Whitemarsh Open Golf Tournament by one stroke over Gary Player.

As Nicklaus rallied over the Country Club course, jaunty Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, who either shared or led through the first three rounds, blew up with a final round 76 and a 279 for a fourth place tie with veteran pro Dave Marr.

Nicklaus: Finesse

Arnie Bobbles

Arnold Palmer, the Masters champion, led briefly in a head-to-head duel with Rodriguez, but the Latrobe, Pa., belter fell by the wayside when he shanked his tee shot out of bounds on the short 15-yard 12th hole and took a two-stroke penalty.

Rodriguez also was the victim of an out of bounds shot, on the eighth, a blast that cost him the lead for the first time and momentarily put Palmer in the driver's seat. From here on, Rodriguez fell apart.

Nicklaus, although trailing by half a dozen strokes, played his final round safely. He carded five birdies and played the other 13 holes in regulation. The 6-foot, 20-pounder said he didn't play particularly well, just scored well.

Nicklaus and Player, in the same threesome, gave the crowd a rousing finish as they reached the 18th gren just a stroke apart.

Big Jack, who took over the PGA money wining lead with his $24,000 first prize here, two putted from 14 feet for a par 4. Player just missed chipping in a tying shot, the ball rolling six feet past.

Bueno Win In Tennis Is 'Bueno'

By GEOFFREY MILLER

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Maria Bueno, the mercurial Brazilian, was on top of the world again Sunday after completing the greatest comeback in the history of women's tennis.

The girl who was struck down by hepatitis three years ago was Wimbledon queen again. She regained the crown Saturday with a 6-4, 7-9, 6-3 victory over Margaret Smith, the powerful Australian who was rated by many experts as unbeatable.

"And I didn't even get tired." Maria said afterward. "After I was ill I longed to get fit again and win at Wimbledon. But the doctors told me there was nothing I could do except be patient. They said it would be three years before I could expect to be my old self again.

"The three years are up—and I'm Wimbledon champion again."

Floyd's Win Puts Him Up For Title Shot

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Floyd Patterson won a 12-round decision over Eddie Machen here Sunday and took a giant step along the path to another shot at the world heavyweight boxing championship.

Patterson, the New Yorker who was knocked out twice in the first round by Sony Liston in two title fights in the United States, weighed 193. Machen of Redding, Calif., was 199.

Patterson won nearly all of the 12 rounds with stinging punches to the head. When his right arm was raised in the traditional victory sign by the referee, Machen acknowledged defeat with a weary grin on his battered face. There were no knockdowns.

A crowd of more than 40,0 turned out at the Raasunda Outdor Stadium for the match between the two American heavies that was an eagerly sought title match in the United States some years ago until Sweden's Ingemar Johansson knocked Machen out of contention with a one round kayo.

It was Patterson's second victory on the comeback trail since his second defeat by Liston last summer in Las Vegas, Nev., he stopped the Italian champion Sante Amonti here six months ago in the eighth round.

The fight was billed as a qualification to determine a challenger to the current world champion, Cassius Clay. The victory means Patterson is in line once more for a title shot.

WILL YOU FILL THE BILL—TOMORROW?

In a few years, the job market will be different. New skills, new abilities will be wanted. The "good job" you have today may not even exist in the future.

Machines and new methods are always replacing jobs. That's progress. But progress also provides new opportunities—for better-paying jobs. That's where you come in.

You won't get tomorrow's jobs with yesterday's skills

It won't be that easy. But nothing as important as your future ever is. Take a step in the right direction this week, and talk to the local office of your state employment service.
